| Description                        | Salt marshes are an incredibly rare habitat that are under threat in Israel. They are especially important for migratory waders which visit Israel twice a year. We are looking to create a project that will survey this habitat, create awareness of this important natural asset and engage the community in this protection. We are looking for a partner in Spain who will be willing to work with us on this effort which will also help conserve many species of migrating birdlife. |
| Project Objectives                 | Surveying the habitat, educational program, communal events, eco-tourism, work with decision makers and conserving and improving the habitat.   |
